CHATTINGS ABOUT MARSHVILLE

Many Points of Interest Picked Up in a Day's Visit to Our Neighbor.

Marshville is doing her part towards securing the Wilmington-Charlotte highway through this county. A staff correspondent of The Journal was in that place Friday afternoon, and he was very much surprised to see the people so united in this particular matter of securing a general highway. No certain set of men are agitating the matter—it is simply spontaneous action on the part of both men and women towards the materialization of this most worthy project. When we say women, we mean it. The ladies aided considerably in raising funds by staging and exhibiting a play, which realized a nice sum for the road fund.

The road supervisors of Marshville township have also exhibited the right spirit. They donated a thousand dollars to the road fund on condition that a like sum be raised by the citizens of the township. This has been done, and the road fund to date amounts to two thousand dollars.

Mr. L. E. Huggins is a member of the road finance committee, which was selected at a mass meeting of the citizens held recently, and he told The Journal correspondent that he thought it would take another additional thousand dollars to build the Marshville township stretch up to specifications. Part of this will be contributed by other patriotic citizens, and they hope to secure the remainder from the county commissioners. This is a reasonable expectation, and many feel that the commissioners will be glad to render this much aid.

And by the way, Mr. Huggins is a good road enthusiast that any section of the county should rightly be proud of. He has no commercial interest at stake (being post master), and he is working only from an inherent interest in the county. Mr. Huggins took a leading part in the agitation of the road plan, which was defeated at the polls some months ago. He was not discouraged and he is today exhibiting the same indomitable zeal towards securing better roads for his township.

Mr. C. B. Covington, cashier of the Bank of Marshville, is chairman of the road construction committee that was also selected at the mass meeting. He was not in when The Journal correspondent called, being out of town. But from what could be understood, he is casting his eye around for a civil engineer. It is believed that the State Highway commission will furnish an engineer free of charge, and it was said Friday that Mr. Covington had written them in regard to it.

There is no doubt that Marshville can secure the road if the other sections on the route will do their share. But she is trusting that they will do so and is going ahead doing her part.

An unusual sight met The Journal's correspondent when he wandered over towards the depot about five o'clock in the afternoon. On a truck lay about 700 pounds of meat that was sewed up in canvass bags awaiting the train to be carried to Laurinburg. The meat was being shipped by Mr. R. F. Carpenter, who deals extensively in meats. Only last Friday he bought 32 heaves and he is slaughtering them daily to be shipped to various points. Mr. Carpenter makes it a regular business to buy cattle to slaughter and ship, and he hopes to soon be able to be in shape to handle all that can be brought to him.

Mr. S. D. Moore, who is a Confederate veteran, although he does not look to be a day over 50, says more attention is being paid to the buying and selling of meat every day. He says that he has seen hundreds of pounds of meat shipped from Marshville every day, and that the amount is steadily increasing.

Mr. Moore believes that Mr. Tom Dillon and Mr. Bob Morrow will have to cut out the annual fourth of July celebration if the people persist in attending in such large numbers as were present during the last celebration. It was sure a big crowd, said Mr. Moore, and a fellow couldn't hardly get around. Mr. Moore also said the old soldiers' dinner that was served on the last fourth was certainly a whopper.

Mr. W. E. Strawn, who operates a grocery store, gave The Journal man the glad hand Friday. He takes The Journal, and says that he likes it fine. He also said some complimentary things about his old neighbor, Mr. O. P. Timist of Wingate.

Mr. Strawn believes that the next legislature should enact a law to protect grocerymen from people who move into a town, run up a big bill, and then hike to the tall timbers. Such protection is already afforded to hotels and boarding houses, and he feels that the merchants should receive the same consideration.

Dr. Mott P. Blair is very much interested in the Monroe water supply. He thinks the method of boring wells every year or so should be suspended, and that the river for its water supply. This will have to be done eventually, said Dr. Blair, and the sooner the better. Monroe has already spent enough money in the past to pay for a pipe line to the river and it should discontinue the present method of hit and miss.

Mr. T. P. Smith, who is well known over the entire county, is now in charge of the hardware department of the United Cash Store. This department is a recent annexation to the already growing business of the United Cash Store, being the old Union Hardware Co., which was taken over by the above mentioned firm. Mr. Smith attended the revival meeting in Monroe last Thursday, when the colored people sang, and he was very much amused as well as pleased at their singing.

Mr. G. B. Caldwell, who accompanied The Journal correspondent, says that the crops along the Wingate road from Lee's Mill to Marshville, are the best in the county. There are certainly some splendid stands of both corn and cotton, and that section stands well to harvest a bountiful crop.

The new road from Wingate to Marshville has been named the Webb road. The decision was handed down by Dr. John Blair, and it has stuck. It was built by Messrs. Elberbe Williams, Jesse Barr, Joe Webb, Raymond Webb and others.

SCRAPS ENOUGH FOR SIXTY THOUSAND PIGS

That Much Came From One Army Corps—Cultivating Crops Right Under the Guns of the Enemy.

Dispatch from the German Front. The German economical organization extends to the very edge of the trenches; yes, to the trenches themselves. While even today the internal organization of distribution has not yet reached that perfection and smooth running of so gigantic a machine as might be desired, German resourcefulness, ingenuity, industry and economy are the marvels of the war and of this people.

Here on the west front the fields of barley, wheat, rye and oats extend to the very trenches. In numerous places the cutting and harvesting can be done only at night, because of the machine gun fire from the French trenches. A thousand acres are under easy cannon range of the French, but this does not prevent harvesting.

Provides Change For Men.

Companies and entire battalions draw back from the trenches for change and rest, are detailed for this purpose. The huge motor trucks and wagons, which bring up the shells and shrapnel to the German guns are turned for a few hours or days into the peaceful pursuit of hauling grain.

Thirty-five threshing machines have been ordered from Germany for the west front by Lieut. Col. S. Agricultural Director, Col. S. is assisted by a corps of German agriculture specialists brought here for that purpose.

Many French threshers were available, but they were found so inferior that the loss in grain in threshing the war crop would amount to three times the cost of the thirty-five new German machines, $200,000.

Sufficient For Whole Army.

It is expected that the crop on the occupied French area, after giving the population its allotment, will be sufficient for the entire subsistence of the German forces there.

For some time now even the remnants and scraps of the very simple fare in the trenches and immediately behind the line where there is no active battle have been gathered daily. These scraps of food, says Col. S., would be sufficient to raise, feed and fatten 600,000 pigs to eatable size every four months.

One corps has a dairy of 600 cows behind the lines which furnishes this corps with butter and cheese. This corps has its own slaughter-house and brewery, through which Major K. showed me, sixty-five heaves and 200 hogs are slaughtered daily. One ton of bologna is turned out every day. The hogs are ground up and used as chicken feed in the corps poultry yard.

120,000 Bottles of Beer.

Twelve thousand bottles of beer are bottled daily at a cost to the men of six cents and as much seltzer water at a cost of one cent a bottle.

The daily allowance of meat to the men in the trenches is 500 grams (1.1 pounds) six days a week, or more than twice as much as the people of Berlin get in a week. But there is one meatless day in the trenches. When relieved in the trenches for rest in the rear the daily allowance is 165 grams.

Many of these corps and divisions live better than I do in a hotel in Berlin. This almost luxurious condition applies only to troops which have long been in the same position. These men must not be confused with the many tens of thousands engaged in battle of the Somme or Ancre or those who are constantly on the move from one point to another, as the situation requires.
